FARMERS' COLUMN

The Farm and Home

Sell or confine roosters as soon as the hatching season is over. Fertile eggs become unfit for food much more quickly in warm weather than do infertile eggs. Therefore, if roosters are not wanted for next year, sell them at once.

Grapes should be sprayed to control black rot and mildew when the new growth is about an inch long. A Bordeaux mixture is used. See a county farm agent for instructions, or ask the college of agriculture for leaflet no. 11.

Too much pressure or too long application of the iron may give shiny results in pressing clothes. Place a light weight damp cloth on the garment, and then cover with a heavier dry cloth. Apply hot iron lightly.

No practical means have been found to remove "off flavors" in milk, caused by cows eating wild onions or other weeds. If the weeds cannot be eradicated, then the cows should be taken off grazing at least six hours before milking.

Prices advanced on beef cattle, lambs, live chickens, horses, mules, hay, cottonseed, and apples during the month ended April 15. They declined on cotton, hogs, veal calves, sheep, dairy and poultry products, potatoes, and all grains except corn.

Plant lima beans with the eye down, putting one seed every 6 inches. A row 100 feet long should furnish a table supply for a family of five. An equal amount should be grown for canning.

Give the Bees Room

In well kept bee colonies brood rearing is now far advanced. Many hives are filled with brood and bees, a condition that is pleasing to the beekeeper. The population of these colonies will increase rapidly from this time until the swarming period, which will arrive about May 15 in most sections of Kentucky, says a statement from the college of agriculture, university of Kentucky.

Swarming is undesirable and the aim of the good beekeeper is to keep it at a minimum. To prevent swarming, queen cells should be cut at regular intervals of seven days beginning as soon as the first cells appear. This operation alone will not prevent swarms. Seldom, however, will a colony cast a swarm except where the hive is crowded with bees and brood. This condition can be avoided by giving an additional hive body for brood rearing. If the colony wintered in a single hive body it is urged that the second story be added without delay.

Strawberry Preserves

The following strawberry preserve recipe was furnished to the college of agriculture by Mrs. Annie B. Goddard of Mercer county: Mix a pint of sugar with barely enough water to dissolve it, or about half of a cup. Let come to boil. Put in a heaping pint of strawberries, bring to boil, add another level pint of sugar, again bring to boiling, and add another pint of berries. Let boil for 10 minutes. Spread in shallow dishes for 24 hours. Place with fork in jars. The juice left may be put into bottles.

Studies in Farm Taxes

A study of taxation, assessment, and sales of farm land in every county in the state was one of the projects conducted by the agricultural experiment station of the university of Kentucky, in cooperation with the United States department of agriculture with the assistance of the civil works administration.

As a result of this work there are now on file at the experiment station 300,000 records of transactions affecting the assessment, taxation, and sale of farm lands throughout the state. This is the most complete information of its kind ever assembled in Kentucky. "The experiment station now has a mine of important information concerning the assessment and taxation of farm lands," points out Dean Thos. P. Cooper. "This material will give us an opportunity to study the relationship of assessments to values as determined by actual sales, and to compare these facts with those of other industries. It will be possible when analyzed to present a clear picture of the effect on farm values of foreclosures and delinquencies. Such a study should be valuable to all persons interested in the sound progress of agriculture, and is basic to improvements that may tend to prevent recurrences of types of inequities such as have prevailed in the past few years."

The study was one of the major CWA projects conducted under the auspices of the university of Kentucky. Four or five local persons were employed in every county to gather

MONEY FOR COUNTIES

Among the numerous traps laid by the state administration to accomplish the enactment of a tax program conceived in iniquity and born of selfishness is the proposition to appropriate directly to the various counties of the state one third of the revenue to be received by the operation of the gross receipts or sales tax now pending in the state legislature.

We fully appreciate the needs of perhaps nine tenths of the counties of the state and believe that the time is not far distant when some legislative relief must be provided. The direct levying of a state tax as proposed for the use of the counties is of very doubtful authority, and it is our opinion that the counties would never build any roads or pay off any bonds with money received from a state sales tax should such tax be passed.

Our leading article on this page this week contains a substitute for the legislature's interim committee tax program. This substitute program follows the line of the minority report of the interim committee. We can heartily endorse both or either without any reservation whatsoever.

More and more the state feels the need of a license law for automobile drivers. States which have enacted such laws have materially reduced their traffic accidents. The legislature could raise a half million dollars for the state, and by requiring the payment of the poll tax, which is annually assessed but scarcely ever collected from transients or non real estate owners, as a qualification for the license, a neat little sum could be accumulated in additional county revenue. This tax would all come from persons able to pay.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS

The Missionary society met Thursday afternoon, May 10, with Mrs. C. K. Stacy, for their monthly program and business meeting.

The president, Mrs. I. J. Scudder, led the devotions.

After the business session Mrs. C. K. Stacy had charge of the program. Mrs. Curtis Franklin and Miss Margaret Brong gave some interesting word pictures of the People's Central Institute of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Mrs. W. A. Caskey gave an interesting talk on the Collegio Bennett School for Girls in Rio de Janeiro.

Present were Mrs. C. K. Stacy, Mrs. W. A. Caskey, Mrs. Will Stacy, Mrs. T. H. Caskey, Mrs. H. S. Trayner, Mrs. James Franklin, Mrs. C. P. Henry, Mrs. Roland Stacy, Mrs. D. R. Keeton, Mrs. John Carter, Mrs. I. J. Scudder, Misses Ethel Mae Keeton and Margaret M. Brong, and Rev. I. J. Scudder.

All were more than glad to have Mrs. Henry in attendance again after so long an illness.

The hostess served delicious punch and cake.

ORDINATION SERVICE

A large congregation attended the ordination service at the Baptist church Sunday morning, May 13, when Roscoe Brong, recently called as pastor of the church, was ordained to the full work of the gospel ministry.

The ordaining council consisted of the following ministers: M. A. Eggleston of Marlita, A. O. Allison of Grain, Frank A. Clarke of Salyersville, M. B. Whitte of Wrigley, and John F. McKenzie of West Liberty.

Rev. Eggleston was elected moderator of the council. Rev. Whitte led in questioning the candidate; Rev. McKenzie gave the ordination prayer; Rev. Allison delivered the sermon and charge; Rev. Clarke presented the Bible; and Rev. Whitte then presented the newly ordained minister to the church.

VENERABLE MINISTER ATTENDS

Dr. W. L. Gevedon of Grassy Creek called off his regular preaching appointment at Wells Union to attend the ordination services at the Baptist church here Sunday.

Elder Gevedon, 90 years old, is perhaps the oldest regularly ordained minister in Morgan county, and it was considerable satisfaction to him to attend the ordination of one of the youngest of the county's ministerial ranks.

The End of the Rainbow

Mr. F. S. Brong, Editor, Licking Valley Courier, West Liberty, Kentucky.

My dear sir:

To me, one of the greatest mysteries of childhood rested around that age-old saying, "There's a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow." There is no question but that the taxpayers of Kentucky have found the end of the rainbow, but let us consider briefly whether they have found the pot of gold.

Again the governor of our commonwealth has called into special session the lawmakers of the state to consider appropriations with which to operate the state government. An entire session of the legislature was held in the early months of this year to which, under the law, they were supposed to submit the amounts necessary to operate the different departments and provide the revenue for same. Many bills for furnishing revenue to our state were introduced, but they were held in the committee of the house and were never permitted to be heard in consideration. The biggest thing they did was to repeal some of the laws which brought revenue into the treasury and then adjourned without making sufficient appropriations to operate our schools and government.

If I were not personally acquainted with the group of men who seek to milk the taxpayers of their hard-earned money, who are looking further ahead than the present needs of today, and who seek to place the "relief emergency" and the horrible condition of the schools before the eyes of the public in order to deceive them, I might remain in silence as I have for many months and be content with the present and future conditions of our state affairs.

Experience is a good education and I will frankly admit that in my experience I have made many mistakes. I grant you that loyalty has played a big part in my life and that kindness of heart has caused me to place too much confidence in those with whom I had not become acquainted. I grant you that the failures of the 1933 session of the legislature to provide revenue for our schools and relief is necessary and essential that some measure of taxation should be passed, but I contend that the special session recently called is unnecessary because these matters should have been passed at the regular session.

Who ever heard of a regular session of the legislature convening for the purpose of presenting the budget of the state for the biennial period, and then adjourning without even attempting to furnish revenue for this operation? It was done for one purpose and only one. This same crowd of politicians wanted to freeze the public into submission, who want the Kentucky Educational association to cry for financial help and to force the people of the state to submit their approval for additional taxes in the amount of approximately $20,000,000 annually.

At our special session of August, 1933, we were told by the governor that unless we provided $3,000,000 in cash there would be no relief money available for Kentucky during the winter months just ahead. He further told us that the only method of paying same was a sales tax. But it was not passed, the people were not burdened with heavy taxes, and, as you well know, we were provided with sufficient relief money during the winter. At that time, they were satisfied with a one percent sales tax, but now, in their effort to obtain additional power to provide additional jobs with which to extract from the wage earners of Kentucky a three percent tax instead of the one percent asked for last year.

Some of these same men who refused to place a tax of 15 cents a gallon on liquor, who refused to allow an exemption on the small land owner and thereby retain the state taxes on the corporations and large interests in Kentucky, and passing an additional bill placing all the powers of education in the hands of a commission at Frankfort, are the men who now seek to place upon the backs of a tiring tax-paying public additional burdens which they cannot bear.

I submit the following: An increase from 5 cents to 15 cents per gallon on manufactured liquors which will raise, according to tax experts, the sum of four million dollars annually. A tax of 2 cents to be added to the retail price of cigarettes and a 1 cent tax on each eight sold in the state will yield another four million dollars. A tax on amusement parks, theater tickets, and the like, together with some consideration in the reduction of the cost of government, will bring the needed revenue, will give our school teachers a nice salary check, will provide the needed relief money, and with a portion of the real estate tax returned, it will give our schools more than two million additional money that was taken away from them by the last session of the legislature.

This is the legislature that refused to make primaries compulsory in the election of our state officials. I am a member of the state central committee which meets and determines the method of nominating our state officials, and I would have been happy had the legislature taken from the committee the power of selection and made the primary compulsory. As I have stood on the election of county superintendent and all other matters pertaining to the people, I believe in taking the issue squarely before the public and the most with peace and satisfaction with their decision.

As a buck private in the rear ranks, happy in my work, I would ask what I would become of a government whose lawmakers refuse to tax the sports who buy the liquor, yet who seek to tax the meat and bread of the laboring man, who are content to vote against taxing the luxuries that are bought with the surplus money of the individual, yet who seek to tax those who have no surplus money, but barely the necessities of life.

I write you, Mr. Editor, unselfishly, and only in the interest of the taxpayers, as my experience and many lessons that I have learned have convinced me that there is very little sincerity in our state government, regardless of the party in power. This is not a criticism of either political party, but of a group of men who seek to stay in power at the expense of patronage and waste, caused by extravagant operations of our government. As far as our local representative and senator are concerned, they pledged themselves to the people, both on the platform and in writing which was published in your paper, that they would not, under any consideration, support a retail sales tax. They are men of integrity and I am sure they will stand to that pledge.

Many men receive jobs, many offices are created, but few, if any, are ever abolished. We have come to the end of the rainbow, but instead of finding the pot of gold we find a gang of bi-partisan politicians, offering apologies for the disappearance of the gold and asking the taxpayers of Kentucky to furnish more gold in order that they may pay off more patronage, create more useless jobs, and shake the red rag of "relief" before the eyes of the public while they extract money from the very necessities of life.

Petitions are circulated between these sessions of the legislature with the hope of releasing the legislators from their campaign promises, yet they left at home in defeat the boys who may have advocated a sales tax, because not one of them in Kentucky was elected on a sales tax platform. Shall we raise the money? Yes, by all means, but for God's sake let's use good judgment in our method and not fall for the story of "Chicken Little" and get to believing that "the sky is falling."

Yours very truly,
WALTER H. SEBASTIAN

ROAD NOTICE

To the road overseers of Morgan county:

You are hereby notified and ordered to keep your sections of roads in proper condition. The help we have received from the CWA on roads in no way affects the free labor by which the roads of Morgan county must be maintained. So I am asking not only the road overseers but all good citizens to cooperate to the end that all our public roads be put in proper condition. A good team attached to a drag can accomplish wonders in smoothing up the surface of a road.

The road law is the same law it was five or ten years ago—and it will be enforced.

Respectfully,

W. A. CASKEY, Judge Morgan co.

WONDERFUL ACHIEVEMENT

When the public remembers the chaotic condition of the banks of this country with practically all of them closed or about to close as President Roosevelt took office on the 4th of March, 1933, a little more than fourteen months ago, it must be admitted by even the narrowest person that the president has brought about a complete revolution in the banking situation. In the four months of the year under the new banking law, passed by a Democratic congress, only 25 banks closed their doors. The clearing house returns in all of the cities show a tremendous increase in the banking business, and deposits everywhere are rapidly increasing in both state and national banks. Mr. Roosevelt has taken a ruined banking system and stabilized it and put it on its feet firmly and permanently in a single year. He has done even more than this. He has done what 14 months ago was apparently an impossible task. He has opened 698 banks that have fully resumed their banking functions. If the Roosevelt administration had accomplished nothing else material in the thirteen months of its existence but to stabilize and make prosperous all of the banks in the United States and to open 698 banks that were closed, it would be an achievement greater than has been accomplished by any of the three Republican administrations that preceded it. It stands out as the most masterful piece of financial legislation in history.—Elizabethtown News.

NEW CONTRACTS FOR AIR MAIL

Carrying of the air mail has been returned to private aviation lines, as has always been contemplated. The furor raised because existing mail contracts were cancelled when investigation showed they had been awarded irregularly is revealed as having been the squawk of selfish interests who howled when their rich concessions were taken from them.

New air mail contracts have been and are being negotiated. Bids for carrying the mail revealed that this postal service could be secured at a saving of $7,800 a day. This fact alone gives some idea of how much the government was being misled by aviation companies who had got mail contracts thru fraud and exertion of political influence.

The economy that has been effected by canceling the old contracts, tainted by fraud, and re-advertising for bids and making new awards supplies sufficient justification for the drastic action taken by President Roosevelt in nullifying the old contracts.

Partisan foes of the president have tried to make it appear that canceling the air mail contracts was a major blunder. But events have supplied ample justification of that action.

Oakley Sisters Here

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Schreiber of New Britain, Connecticut, and Mrs. Earl Franklin of Aberdeen, Maryland, were in town visiting R. M. Oakley Monday and spent the night here. Mrs. Schreiber and Mrs. Franklin are Mr. Oakley's daughters. They left here Tuesday morning for Bardonia, Mr. Oakley accompanying them, for a stay of several days with Mr. Oakley's son, and thence for a visit at Louisville with another son. Mr. Oakley will accompany the Schreibers to their home in Connecticut, where he will spend the summer.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

In a northern state there is a great college. This college has honored the writer by conferring upon him an honorary degree. The institution has been known for 97 years as an old time, orthodox, evangelical college. It has been known as an institution of high standards educationally and morally. Imagine the surprise of the writer when recently there appeared an Associated Press story saying that this famous old college "has lifted a 97 year ban on dancing and card playing." The president of the school—so the report says—found that the majority of the patrons of the school are not opposed to dancing and card playing.

It is not the purpose of the writer at this time to argue against dancing and card playing. Personally, he does not think Christians should do that sort of thing. He believes that God should have the benefit of the doubt in all things. To say the least, there is a question in the minds of a large percentage of Christian people about whether they should dance and play cards.

The thing which distresses the writer is the fact that an institution will lower its standards to satisfy a majority of the present patrons. What about the saints who are dead and gone who built the school and handed it down to their children? The school owes something to them. What about the ministers of the denomination which is back of the school who do not believe in dancing and card playing and who have raised money to keep the school going and who have sent students to them to keep the enrollment up?

There is too much lowering of standards today in schools, churches, and society. We had better keep the standards up even if we don't live up to them. We should not drag the standards to our low plane of living. If religious schools and denominational institutions are not going to be different from state institutions, then why should people be asked to support these schools and give their hard-earned money to keeping up institutions which are sometimes no more Christian than tax-supported state institutions? Personally, I would prefer to send my own child to a state institution rather than to send him to a religious institution which lowers its standards as a matter of temporary convenience to satisfy even a majority of the patrons of the college. A Christian college has an obligation to God and to the saints who have built the institution. Our business is to hold up standards and not to pull them down.

Birds Like National Capital

Probably because the National Capital is more heavily wooded than most cities of half a million population, it has a teeming bird life. Most of the birds, of course, are migratory. Those probably are not more than a dozen species which remain throughout the winter season but, by the first of June, there are more than a hundred different kinds of birds. Because of the proximity of the Potomac river and the Chesapeake bay, Washington is on the route of the wild duck and the wild goose. Each season sees wedges of these birds of passage flying over. They settle on the broad reaches of the Potomac below Washington and each autumn sees the duck blinds occupied by capital sportsmen.

Cat With Wings

The curator of the Oxford zoo has been puzzled by the arrival of a black and white cat which has on its back fully-developed fur-covered wings, with which it is stated it can fly. It was seen in a local garden to move from the ground to a beam, to which it could not have leaped. The wings grow just in front of the hindquarters and measure a foot from tip to tip. The curator says he is somewhat skeptical whether the cat can really fly in the sense that a bird does. It is possible that its hindquarters are powerful and that it can spring to a considerable height, aided by its wings.

HEAVY FREIGHT NOW FLOWN TO WORKINGS

The airplane, speediest of man's mechanical contrivances, is not usually regarded as a means of carrying heavy freight, according to the Knickerbocker Press.

However, there are spots on the earth's surface so inaccessible that only a pack train can reach them. If pieces heavier than can be carried on the backs of animals are needed for developing rich resources in such regions, recourse may be had to big planes, using the open pathway of the air.

This was done some time ago in New Guinea, the huge, largely unexplored island north of Australia. Areas capable of producing gold profitably by large dredges, with steam shovels and sifting machinery were set up, were discovered in a mountainous region where building and maintaining a railroad or an adequate road was out of the question.

Machine parts up to an engine shaft weighing nearly three tons were flown in, dredges equipped and set to work. Word comes that Pan-American Airways has completed the job of flying 55 tons of heavy mining machinery to a rich gold field in Peru lying among the peaks of the inner Andes. When gold is found, man will find a way to get it.

Mrs. Elizabeth and Miss Nell Cole went to Lexington Sunday to be with their father, Henry Cole, who is there in the hospital, and with their mother, who is staying with him. Mr. Cole is improving and was taken out of the oxygen tent Sunday.

Hectic Days Sleepless Nights

Miss Currier relieved of nervous days and sleepless nights.

Christine Lanier finds Nerveine best nerve medicine she ever used.

Miss Redman takes Dr. Miles Nerveine when ever she feels restless.

IF YOU are nervous today, you probably will not sleep well tonight. If you don't sleep well tonight, you will probably be nervous tomorrow.

Don't allow yourself to become nervous. Take Dr. Miles Nerveine. It will relax your tense nerves and let you get a good night's sleep.

Irritability, Restlessness, Sleeplessness, often lead to Nervous Headache, Nervous Indigestion, Hysteria—sometimes to a nervous breakdown and organic trouble.

Some of the people, whose letters are printed below, were as nervous as you are—possibly more so—yet they have found relief.

Three years ago I was so nervous I could not bear to go out in company and could not sleep nights. A friend recommended Dr. Miles Nerveine. I now enjoy myself thoroughly and sleep every night. Miss Juliette Currier, New Market, N. H.

I have used Dr. Miles Nerveine in liquid form and find it the best medicine for the nerves I have ever used.

Christine Lanier, Middleton, Tennessee

Whenever I have overindulged and feel restless I take one or two Nerveine Tablets just before I retire. In the morning when I awake I feel like a new person and can go about my work as usual. Dr. Miles Nerveine Tablets quiet your nerves, brace you up and are the simplest, most convenient tablets to take I have ever found.

Miss Grace Redmann, St. James, Minn.

Before using your Nerveine I was very nervous and irritable. Since I have started to take it I feel so much better that my family notice the difference. I still take it from time to time and the good result is wonderful.

Why do you suppose Chevrolet keeps repeating in all of its advertising, "Drive it only 5 miles"? Because Chevrolet engineers have tried out all the various makes of low-priced cars. They have compared performance—on rough roads, in traffic, over hills, through sand and mud and water. And they know what thousands of Chevrolet owners have proved in their daily driving: The Chevrolet ride simply can't be matched by any other in the low-price field. It can't be matched—because no other low-priced car matches any of these five leading features. CHEVROLET MOTOR COMPANY, DETROIT, MICH.
